

The use of cell phones on board an aircraft is something that should be considered very carefully- the use of cellphones is extremely distracting, causing passengers not to hear Flight Attendants instructions. Even the in seat phones are annoying to the passengers sitting next to the "talker" Being seated next to a crosscountry talker is the closest idea of purgatory that can be imagined. Phones can also cause mayhem and violence on board an already very edgy airplane. If businessmen wish to conduct business on the aircraft have the airlines install access to the web, business can be conducted by computer as easily as it can be conducted by telephone.
